THE 1931 BAYONET

* LAST YEAR the good points and the weak points of the 1930 BAYONET seemed very evident to us and this year we were all set to produce the best year-book ever printed for the Academy. The simplicity of the problem has decreased alarmingly since this present staff has taken up the reins and in the face of the many small problems that beset any annual staff, the large problem of getting out a book at all has become a considerable one to us. We now, however, begin to see some prospect of continuing the tradition of publishing an annual and we thus want to call attention to the ways and means of accomplishing the task.

Walker, A. C., as Editor-in-Chief, has had to work with Captain Mooney, Faculty Adviser, in organizing the book and in dividing and assigning the various parts of the work, he has also worked with George Sherman in editing the Military Department. McNeely, aided by Sam Eaton, has made a big success of the Advertising Department in a year which promised at first to be an exceedingly poor one—without his and Eaton's efforts the BAYONET in its present form would have been an impossibility. Fox, last year's Editor in Chief, was brought into service again to supervise the arrangement of the Fraternity section, both editorially and financially. He and Sherman between themselves have seen to it that nearly everyone requiring an individual picture has paid the necessary visit to the James Studio.

It has been the work of Williamson and Gourde to write up the athletics of the school. Coker, Pendleton, and Robinson started out with the highly laudable intention of writing individual biographical sketches of each senior but gave up in despair, deciding that the traditional summary form was more practicable—Coker finished this task alone, while Robinson and Pendleton joined forces with Moseley in developing the humor section. Paterson, W. A., edited the faculty division and Joe Arnold, the oldest member of the Staff in point of service, designed the pen and ink sketches that adorn these pages. In this connection the Staff wants to thank Neal Higgins for his contribution in the form of the fraternity coats of arms.

In all, the Staff has worked together well and pleasantly and it is their hope that their production may prove pleasant to the BAYONET'S readers. Their attempt has been to give a somewhat more colorful account of Riverside activities for the year than has been provided in the past. Reverting to the first person—we seem to have shifted about considerably in our search for an impersonal viewpoint—we hope that you will like our efforts.

THE RIVERSIDE FACULTY

* THE BAYONET takes this opportunity to congratulate the Academy upon the excellent staff of executives and instructors in charge of the work of Riverside. It is the BAYONET's candid opinion that it would be exceedingly difficult to gather together in a school a finer group of men for this work. All of the staff listed below live with us, work with us, and strive with us toward the one end that we all have in common—making Riverside the greatest of all schools. The possibility of achievement of this goal is most favorable. The BAYONET believes and cites as the basis of this belief the list of faculty officers given herewith which indicates briefly the achievements and responsibilities of each.

THE GRADUATING CLASS

* THE CLASS OF 1931 is the largest graduating class in the history of Riverside, having on its roster 122 cadets to graduate in June and eight to complete their work in Summer School. There are eight men who will receive the Classical Diploma, forty-three who will receive the Scientific Diploma, four to receive the Commercial Diploma, thirty for the English Diploma, and thirty-seven Post Graduates in the June class. The BAYONET gives in this section which follows an individual summary of the achievements of each member of the class, except in the case of the following men who failed to have pictures made for representation: Spaulding Watts, Scientific; Jake A. Gardner, Commercial; William Converse McKey and James Ross Paul, Jr., Post Graduate. The BAYONET regrets greatly the unavoidable omission of these men from its lists but it was impossible to require picture taking, therefore they are not in. R. H. Gray, of the Summer School graduates, also failed to reach the James Studio.

The large number of post graduate students is at once striking and gratifying—these men are graduates of Riverside and of other schools, who realized the importance of an additional year of seasoning before entering college and have returned to make their academic preparation so complete that there could remain no question of their abundant preparation for more advanced work. This section of the senior group has added many outstanding figures to school activities of all sorts—Coker, Crosland, Eaton, Fox, Bearden, Ragland, Sherman, and Curtis Walker are notable among the old men while Dunn, Garbutt, J. L. Gray, Kugan, Touchton, J. P. Walker, and Williamson have attracted attention among the first year men. A glance through the remaining senior groups promptly shows that most of the prospective graduates have made themselves well known in their school. Of the Classical course all save one, Prosser, who has become almost a fixture on the Honor Roll list—have been at Riverside for more than one year and all are well known. Of the next group—the Scientific—only six men are first year men and hence in need of any sort of introduction. And yet there is hardly necessity of introducing Gilbert, McKee, McMillan, Mackie, Phillips, and Pitts who have already identified themselves in music, athletics, or scholarship, or all. Right now you can probably pick out each boy by the activities listed above. In the two groups left—English and Commercial—the percentage of new boys is higher than in the three already considered but space is lacking, so we shall ask you to read about all the rest individually. We regret that we haven't room for personal comment on every senior but we haven't, so you will have to rely upon your own judgment which is probably what you were planning to do anyhow.

The Senior Class feels that it has done its full part toward carrying on the fine things for which Riverside stands. The class has done much toward making the Government Inspection for Honor School the great success that everyone feels that it was and it has provided in large part the battalion and company commanders who have made the successful continuation of military work an established fact. Further the Senior Class has proved an important factor in the handing of attractive social functions such as the Washington Seminary, Pan Hellenic, and Commencement Dances, particularly in providing the various cadet committees that have managed these affairs. In athletics, of course, the seniors have given Captain Dowis many valuable men.

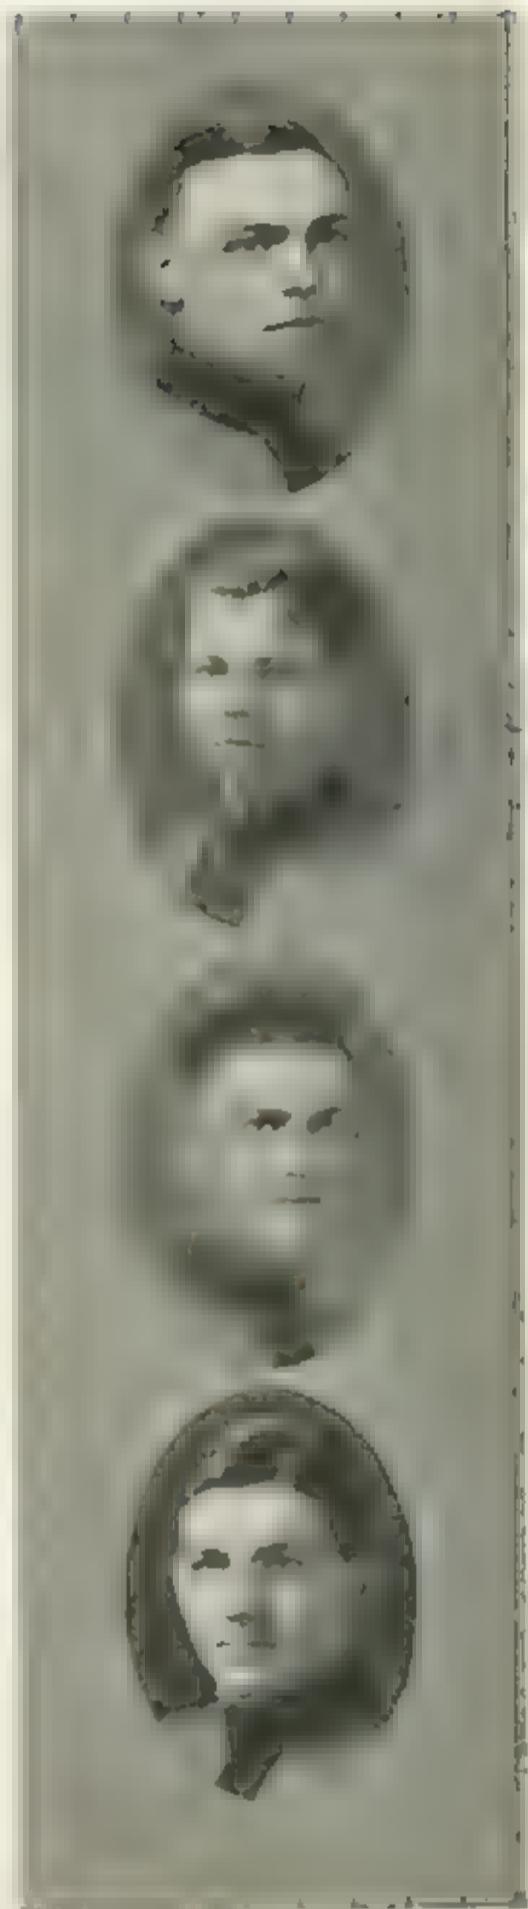

In academic matters, which are, after all, the most important and most ever-present of all, we believe that we have done well and it is our hope that our increased academic efficiency will be reflected in our work at college. For the past two years the academic office has been telling us of the improved standing in college of Riverside men and it is our expectation that the Class of 1931 will effect a considerable improvement over the work of even the classes of 1929 and 1930. At any rate we are now eagerly awaiting the chance.

The BAYONET takes pleasure in presenting on this page those cadets who have made the Honor Roll during the first twenty-four weeks of the current academic year. Honor Roll is limited to those cadets having a minimum weekly average of 93 per cent on all work, and thus represents work of the highest order in all departments.

The Honor Roll pin pictured above is awarded each Tuesday morning and entitles the Honor Roll cadet to first position in all formations; at the same time public congratulation is given to the Honor Roll and a letter of congratulation is sent to the parents of each cadet on the Roll.

JUNIOR CLASS

* It is a little difficult to write of classes in a school where the basis of organization is not the rigid class "form," for here at Riverside we realize constantly that we are not a part of a class but of a great school that is doing a fine work all together. Perhaps when we reach the grade of seniors next year we shall feel a little more "class conscious"—just now we are in the rather awkward fix of being just below seniors.

However, we have a few claims to distinction. First we are the second largest class in school and but for the post graduate addition to the Senior Class we would be the largest. As it is the seniors and PG's are grouped together and we must be satisfied with a second best place. Also we have a large percentage of men in our class who have been at Riverside longer than one year. Also we have a number of celebrities of one sort and another—Tom Boyd, Davis, D. C., Davison, T. C., Dodge, Foley, A. L., Foster, Painter, and many others who have already achieved fame in one way or another. But there's no need of going into this—we haven't allowed space for the individual consideration of our class. We must simply tell you something of our plans and then call it a day.

We hope to muster a class of 150 for our senior year—from our present stock, from seniors returning to PG work and from new recruits and then we can lord it over the entire roost as Riverside's greatest of all graduating classes. But most of all we want to see our school grow with us into its rightful place that it has just about reached already—that of America's greatest school.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

* OURS is the lot of Caesar and Advanced English

Grammar and Ancient European History and Biology and worst of all quadratics and all sorts of such things, so if you think a sophomore is just a person who hasn't anything to do except jump on a bunch of freshmen, you've got another idea coming. Instead we're very busy young fellows, some eighty of us, who have our hands full, trying to keep out of Study Hall and off the Ring and out of all kinds of unpleasant things that they always tell us are good for us. You know, it looks right now like there are more things that are "good" for us than the law allows. Maybe though we'll outgrow the whole thing—hero's hoping.

However, we don't want to sound too downhearted—we're with the rest of the school in everything that's done and we provided some fine corporals and privates for Government Inspection. You know they couldn't have anything like that without privates to work with and on. While we're talking though, we do want to say that we'll be mighty glad to get to be juniors next year because then we'll have Spelling only twice a week and Bible the other two days will help a lot toward escaping Study Hall. Afternoon S. H. anyhow.

There's one thing that gives us hope—that's looking over the freshmen. If we looked like that last year, then we've certainly developed and so maybe by the time we're seniors or post grads we can strut around like Sherman or some of the others who're pretty good strutters. Right now we can say that we are proud of Riverside and that we intend to do everything we can for the school—if we just don't have to work too hard at it.

FRESHMAN CLASS

¶ FRESHMEN are of course the lowest form of animal life, but somehow we feel a little proud of ourselves at that. As Collier Beaver tells us, "As long as you are making definite progress, there's nothing to worry about," and we feel we have made that during the year. Why when we came here in September, except the few of us who were here in Junior School, we thought you didn't wear a uniform unless you were going to parade or something like that. And now we know that we have to keep the things in all the time and we are looking a little more used to them than we used to look. Most of us are privates and hence form an important part of the corps. We are even more important in the fact that we have three years ahead of us and we shall gain size as we go along so that when the year 1934 comes we shall be a great class that will have done many things for Riverside and for which Riverside will have done many things.

We had expected to be treated pretty bad coming into a strict military school like Riverside as freshmen but it hasn't been so bad. In the first place everybody is so busy that they don't have much time to pick on us—they just make us get busy with the rest of them. Then, too, at Riverside it's Riverside—not are you a freshman or a sophomore or a junior? It's just that you are a part of Riverside and you are to do your part. And we hope that we have done and will do ours—that is, as much as freshmen can be expected to.

JUNIOR SCHOOL

★ IN THE Junior School there has been a considerable reorganization this year. Captain Cook is the new Commandant and Director, succeeding Captain Horton who withdrew from the school work in the early part of the year. He has been ably assisted in his work by Mrs. Mullaly and Mrs. Russell of last year's teaching staff and by Mrs. Cook as housemother. In all, the year has been a good one with a full amount of the careful individual attention necessary in grade work.

Most of the twenty-five cadets are in the sixth and seventh grades of the school, although one or two are in lower grades. Despite the fact that many cadets were lost from last year's school by graduation into the Senior School there are still left there several of the old boys to form the necessary group of cadet commissioned and non-commissioned officers.

The Junior School is of course conducted separately from the main school. They have their own barracks, their own dining room, their own distinct school plant. Under Captain Cook's direction they have developed a fine system of competitive athletics of their own and have probably the oldest Junior School youngster in point of service, has assisted ably in developing the necessary interest in this part of the program. The one occasion upon which the Junior School meets with the rest of the school is in chapel, indeed Sunday morning at this service. Cantrell, Coddington, Lingford, the Lockmans, Schumann, Smith, E. R. D., and Strieby have been awarded the Honor Roll "R" from time to time. Of these Cantrell, Lockman, C. D., Smith and Strieby have been especially regular as "honored" one.

The BAYONET wishes to congratulate the administrative officers and the cadets of the Junior School on their rapid development into an integral part of Riverside and upon their ready approximation of the ideals of the parent school.

ACADEMIC EPILOGUE

* It is hardly proper to close this section of the BAYONET without at least calling attention to the high spots of the academic development of Riverside that is constantly going on around us. In the main there were not an excessive number of changes in the personnel of our faculty this year, but the work has been even more departmentalized and intra departmentalized, if the terms are permissible, so that all work in a given subject has been handled wherever possible by one instructor. In consequence the personal equation has been reduced to a minimum with highly pleasing results from every viewpoint.

Additions have been made to the course of study that give opportunity for all types of work. Notable in this connection are the following additions—College Algebra, Commercial Arithmetic, Commercial Law, Business English, Economic Geography, and others. The addition of these courses to an already complete course gives the Riverside cadet an opportunity of selection not permitted the student in the ordinary prep school. It is felt that the good effects of the addition of these courses will be fully demonstrated in the improved academic efficiency of future Riverside graduates.

The changes in the faculty that were necessary have been good ones in the humble opinion of the BAYONET. These are: Captain Daniel as Assistant Principal and Head of the Science Department, Captain Quatlebaum in the English Department, Captain Lishburne in the Science Department, Captain Tucker in the English Department, and the return of Colonel Payne to the History Department. Especially gratifying, too, has been the transfer of Captain Mullaly from the Junior School to the English and Latin Departments.

Of considerable interest have been the studies made by the Academic Office of Riverside graduates in college for the past several years. These highly detailed reports have been used for analysis of the various departments of the Academy and marked progress has been made in eliminating weak points throughout the system with the result that Riverside's standing in this important feature of college preparation is good and is constantly improving. The BAYONET wishes the Academic Department every success and is glad to devote this page to offering it all cooperation that an annual can give.

MILITARY

GOVERNMENT INSPECTION
April 6 and 7, by Colonel White and Major Hobbs

MILITARY

* RIVERSIDE has been for the past eight years designated by the United States War Department as Honor School and thus enjoys the enviable reputation of being the only school in this section of the country to enjoy such distinguished recognition of the efficiency of its work.

Under the able direction of Captain Norman McNeill, the Government detailed Professor of Military Science and Tactics, the excellence of military instruction has been held up to the usual high standard. Captain McNeill has received valuable cooperation in this work from Lieutenant Haswell, Assistant P. M. S. & T., and from Sergeant Mueller whose fine work has become one of the Riverside traditions. In addition to the Government detail the tactical staff has been augmented by the following members of the regular faculty: Colonel Horton, Captain Burger, Captain Russell, Captain T. S. Smith, and Captain Shearouse.

Ordinarily the BAYONET must present its comments on the Military Department in the form of a prediction as to the outcome of Government Inspection. However, the BAYONET has the pleasure this year of commenting in retrospect.

The Government Inspection Board, composed of Colonel White and Major Hobbs, came to Riverside directly from Washington and made a more than usually thorough inspection of the corps and of the plant on April 6th and 7th. We of course cannot offer any accurate prediction as to the result of this inspection since these results must come from the Board itself, probably early in June. The BAYONET does wish to say, however, that from its own somewhat laymanish standpoint the appearance presented to the inspectors seemed most creditable. As a matter of fact in all of our many years experience with similar inspections the BAYONET does not recall a single inspection that has developed in the cadet corps and in the faculty a stronger feeling of confidence of success. Everyone seems to think that the showing made was most creditable and the BAYONET concurs in this sentiment. We agree very heartily with Colonel Beaver in his statement to the corps:

"I am entirely satisfied with the manner in which you carried through with your inspection," and since this is after all the most accurate measure of the success of the department, we offer Captain McNeill and his staff our heartiest congratulations.

Captain Tom Coker's return to Riverside this year for still another year of Post Graduate work was inspired in large measure, his company feels, by the desire to lead Company "A" on through the good year that has prevailed for them. It is always safe to say that a company owes much of what it is to the officers in command and "A" therefore owes a deep debt of gratitude to Coker for his fine leadership. He is one of the most genial and popular cadets in the present corps and yet commands the full respect of all. He has been ably assisted in the direction of "A's" destinies by Oscar Thompson, Joe Arnold, Cheatham, and Cooleedge, although needless to say it has been necessary to squelch the irrepressible Joe from time to time.

Of course, no military organization can rely entirely upon its officers and so in the case of "A" Company the men making up the organization merit hearty commendation for their enthusiastic response to their officers and non-coms. The entire group by working together has managed to keep well to the front in all military affairs and competitions. By similar cooperation the group has won the Inter Company Championships in swimming and in basketball. For that matter the company has managed to make a good appearance in all things—and just by way of exhibition presents the only Riverside cadet who has made the Honor Roll every week of the current year thus far: Cadet Sergeant Davis, D. C., of "A" Company.

With the ribbon designation of the Best-Drilled Company in Pre-Government Inspection Competition streaming from their guidon, "B" Company has again showed its superiority in thus far heading all other companies in Honor Company designations. In every platoon drill competition, a "B" Company platoon has captured first place. A signal honor was accorded this company when it was selected as the guard of honor to General Estes upon the occasion of his visit to Riverside.

In company football competition, "B" Company lost only one game. Its outstanding players were Philips, Bonville, and Payne. Company "B" was also runner up in the basketball series. The team was made up mostly of junior team players and was considered one of the best. They lost in the final game to "A" Company by only a very slight margin. Outstanding players were Lessem, DeWitt, and Ladd, I. H. In the one Inter-Company swimming meet, "B" won third place. Company "B" also has good prospects in both baseball and tennis and should give the other companies serious competition in both sports.

To officers and men is due much credit for the enthusiastic interest that the company has shown in all activities, and to the captain—T. S. Ladd—especial commendation is in order.

"C" Company again this year had the misfortune of losing their captain. This, together with other losses and changes, accounts in part for their present occupation of third place in Honor Company competition—or, to put it differently—you might say that they are in third place simply because others are too good to be ousted from first and second place. However, the present captain, J. C. Williams, is working faithfully and with the help of his platoon leaders should soon either raise his company rating higher or speed up the general pace of the competition. Since the writing of the above, Company "C" has moved forward to first place in the Company competition.

In football, "C" Company hit its stride and triumphed over all other companies in a series of well planned and well played games. The triumph was a difficult and hard fought one that showed Gray, J. L., Jeffords, and Sherman as the outstanding players of the company. Although "C" produced a hard fighting basketball team, it failed to place in the Inter Company Tournament. Ison and Boyd were the outstanding players in this sport. "C" has hopes of putting out a championship baseball team this year and with Charlotte as team captain, Boyd as pitcher, and Sherman as catcher, it seems that their hopes may not be in vain.

The Band is one of the three organizations known as the Special Unit. In competition with the Drum and Bugle Corps and Company "D," the Band won the distinction of being designated Honor Unit last year. This year at the present writing, the Band is a close second to the Drum and Bugle Corps. The BAYONET congratulates the Band for its outstanding work that has made it one of our most noteworthy organizations.

ATHLETICS

RIVERSIDE ATHLETICS

* THE great feature of athletics at Riverside consists of participation in the program by all cadets. For four afternoons each week all other activities, including the popular pursuit of the bull ring, bow to athletics, and the gymnasium, swimming pool, golf course, tennis courts, and athletic fields are filled with an active and large body of boys - each striving for proficiency in his sport under the supervision of experienced coaches.

In the following pages of this department of the BAYONET, a more or less detailed account of each sport and team is given. A summary of these various branches of athletics is given in the statement that definite progress in the athletic education of each boy has been made. Sportsmanship is developed to a high degree and athletic proficiency is increased - these are the two ideals that are fundamental in Riverside's plan. The increased physical development that comes as the result of the program is secondary to the first two but is not less important. The fact that athletics at Riverside are for all cadets rather than for the gifted few natural athletes leads to the achievement of these aims for all.

A brief consideration of Riverside's athletic equipment and coaching staff is necessary as an explanation of the great program outlined above. Central in the athletic equipment is the large gymnasium with its playing floor of 120 by 65 feet, locker rooms, wrestling and boxing rooms, and full equipment for all indoor activities. The tried swimming pool, 75 by 25 feet, gives an unsurpassed opportunity for swimming. On the outside there are nine excellent tennis courts, and the two athletic fields provide room for four football fields or three baseball diamonds. The coaching staff is headed by Captain W. H. Dowis, who has had many years of successful prep school coaching since the completion of his own athletic career at Mercer. He is assisted by Captain E. J. Curtis, likewise a former Mercer athlete; Captain William Pitcher, who was a four letter man at Louisiana State University; Captain Weyman Tucker, who earned a distinguished reputation in athletics at Oglethorpe, and by Captain R. I. Smith of the University of Maine. An important part of the athletic staff is Captain Horning, director of the gymnasium. Colonel Payne and Major Mooney handle the instruction in golf along with Mr. Wyland, professional of the Chattahoochee Golf Club, recently purchased by Colonel Beaver as a splendid addition to what was already an unrivaled school plant. Captain J. K. Mooney is the tennis coach.

The BAYONET congratulates the Academy upon its fine staff, splendid equipment, and the good use to which both are put as is evidenced constantly by the improved physiques and fine sense of sportsmanship developed in all cadets.

VARSITY FOOTBALL

* RIVERSIDE began its campaign for a long and difficult season by opening training for candidates for the football team a week in advance of the start of school. A large number of men reported to Captain Dowis and Captain Tucker for this early work and immediately the necessary hard grind began and in a short while all was ready for what promised to be a glorious season.

In the opening game the cadets defeated a strong team from the Clarkesville A. & M. school by a 13 to 0 score and Riverside hopes were brightened by the strong forward passing attack shown in this game. In the second game of the season the Academy lost a desperately hard fought game to Benedictine in Savannah by the margin of one point scored by the latter in its try for point after goal. Riverside scored in this game on a pass from Goodwin to Simmons.

On the following Saturday, Riverside encountered the Richmond Academy team in Augusta for the game dedicating Richmond's new stadium. The inspiration furnished Riverside's opponents by this ceremony perhaps had something to do with the result which was 12 to 0 in favor of the Augusta team. The occasion was a gala one and the Riverside Band by its fine appearance and performance seemed to run the game a close race for honors.

The Blue and White's next opponents were the Gordon Institute team in Barnesville, and Riverside played a great game to win by the decisive score of 46 to 6. The next game brought G. M. C., coached by "Bobby" Hooks—a Riverside graduate and former coach—to Riverside, and in a fine exhibition of football a tie of 6 and 6 resulted. This is especially significant in the light of later developments which made G. M. C. the G. I. A. A. champions by a decisive margin.

Next began a road trip during which Riverside met and defeated the very strong Greenbrier Military Institute team at Lewisburg, West Virginia, 13 to 7. In this game Riverside played its best game of the year according to the statements of Captains Dowis and McNeill. The concluding game of this trip was with the Plebe Eleven of Captain McNeill's college Alma Mater, the United States Military Academy. The trip was a fine one that was enjoyed by all members of the team and our showing was a highly creditable one. It will be repeated next year and prospective gridironers are already anticipating it.

Upon returning to Riverside the cadets easily disposed of the Darlington Eleven by the score of 45 to 0. In the next game, played in Madison, Riverside lost to the powerful Madison A. & M. team, 19 to 0, in a game that was exceedingly close and hard-fought. Riverside concluded its season by defeating its traditional rival Monroe by the score of 30 to 6 in a game in which the cadet team functioned perfectly.

Our football was supposedly at an end but the authorities of the G. I. A. A. ruled that we play Tech High of Atlanta to determine what team should play Madison for the championship of the Northern Division of the Association. The first game, played in Gainesville, resulted in a scoreless tie, and the second, in Atlanta, resulted in a 7 to 6 victory for Tech High. Thus ended all playing just in time for Christmas vacation.

This account has been purposely a summary, for the BAYONET feels that the intelligent reader will at once see the reason for Riverside's failure to achieve the championship that has become almost traditional here. The season was long and difficult and involved many trips. The material for the most part consisted of new men at Riverside and injuries depleted the force of the team. The record outlined above is certainly, in view of these obvious facts, a most commendable one in which Riversiders may take pride.

INTER-COMPANY FOOTBALL

* NOT as much interest was taken in the Inter-Company Football this year as there has been in years heretofore, due to the Varsity's prolonged season and the support which had to be given to the team. Also other activities interfered with the football.

There were, however, several spirited contests and some excellent material was discovered through this branch of intra-mural sport.

In the first game Company "A" and Company "B" played to a 0-0 tie. These teams were evenly matched and played with the determination to win. Both teams had a very good defense, but were a little weak on offense. The ball was in scoring distance several times by both teams but both failed to cross the goal for a score.

The next game we found "C" Company playing the "S. U." This was an exciting and a spirited game, "C" Company scoring in the last quarter on a long pass to win the game 6-0. Both teams showed up well, however "C" Company had the weight on the "S. U."

In the third game of the first round Company "A" and Company "C" tied 0-0. These two teams fought unusually hard but neither were able to score.

The last game of the first round, which also resulted in the last game of the tournament, was between Company "C" and Company "B." Company "C" was determined to win and fought so consistently and hard that Company "B" was unable to hold them. Thus Company "C" scored a goal and the extra point to win the game 7-0.

In the weeks following, bad weather and Varsity football practice interfered with the company football and the second round was not played. Thus the championship was given to Company "C" who won all of their games. There is no doubt that Company "C" had a good team, but if the second round had been played there would have been several surprises made by the various teams which would have made it hard for Company "C" to win the championship.

This one round, however, enabled the coaches to see and discover some good material for the Varsity next year and instil into the boys the enthusiasm and spirit of the previous years.

VARSITY BASKETBALL

* RIVERSIDE was greatly handicapped in beginning the basketball season without having a single Varsity man returned from the previous year. However, under the capable guidance of Captain Dowis with the Varsity and Captain Tucker with the "B" team, a clever team was developed that made a highly creditable showing for the season.

In the regular season the following games were played:

Riverside . . 20—24 G. M. C.
Riverside . . 20—21 Monroe A. & M.
Riverside . . 20—21 Monroe A. & M.
Riverside . . 20—21 Monroe A. & M.
Riverside . . 20—21 Monroe A. & M.

Riverside . . 28—23 Monroe A. & M.
Riverside . . 20—21 Monroe A. & M.
Riverside . . 28—29 Clarksville A. & M.
Riverside . . 21—18 Clarksville A. & M.

In the G. I. A. A. Tournament, held in Macon, Riverside won its first round match through the withdrawal of G. M. A. from the Association, but was eliminated in the second round by the strong Lanier High School team 39 to 21.

The following cadets earned the Riverside "R" in basketball: Walker, A. C., Mays, Cox, Thompson, O. H., Lucas, Goodwin, Alford, Floyd, Gray, J. L., and Kemp. The regular Varsity line-up consisted of Walker and Mays at forward positions, Lucas at center, and Goodwin and Floyd as guards.

JUNIOR BASKETBALL

* In keeping with the policy of Riverside, "Athletics for All," a basketball team was formed, composed of cadets weighing less than 140 pounds and averaging 130 pounds. This team was entered in the Gainesville Industrial League and acquitted itself well. At the banquet held on March 31, the Elkhorn Cup was presented to the squad for taking second place in the league race. This in itself speaks well for the ability of the cadets participating.

When the season opened, the team gave promise of being one of those that would have to be defeated for the championship. However, misfortune in the form of study hall and extra duty hurt their efficiency in mid-season. Having learned the lesson of studying if they wished to play basketball, the team "got together" and ended the season by winning their last five games of the season.

The squad was composed of the following cadets, all of whom took an active part in the season's competition: Winstead, Bougon, Ellis, Griffin, Lessem, Calvin, Stimpson, DeWitt, Higgs, Cooledge, Taylor, R., Foley, A. L., Fink, Daniels, and Kent, J. S.

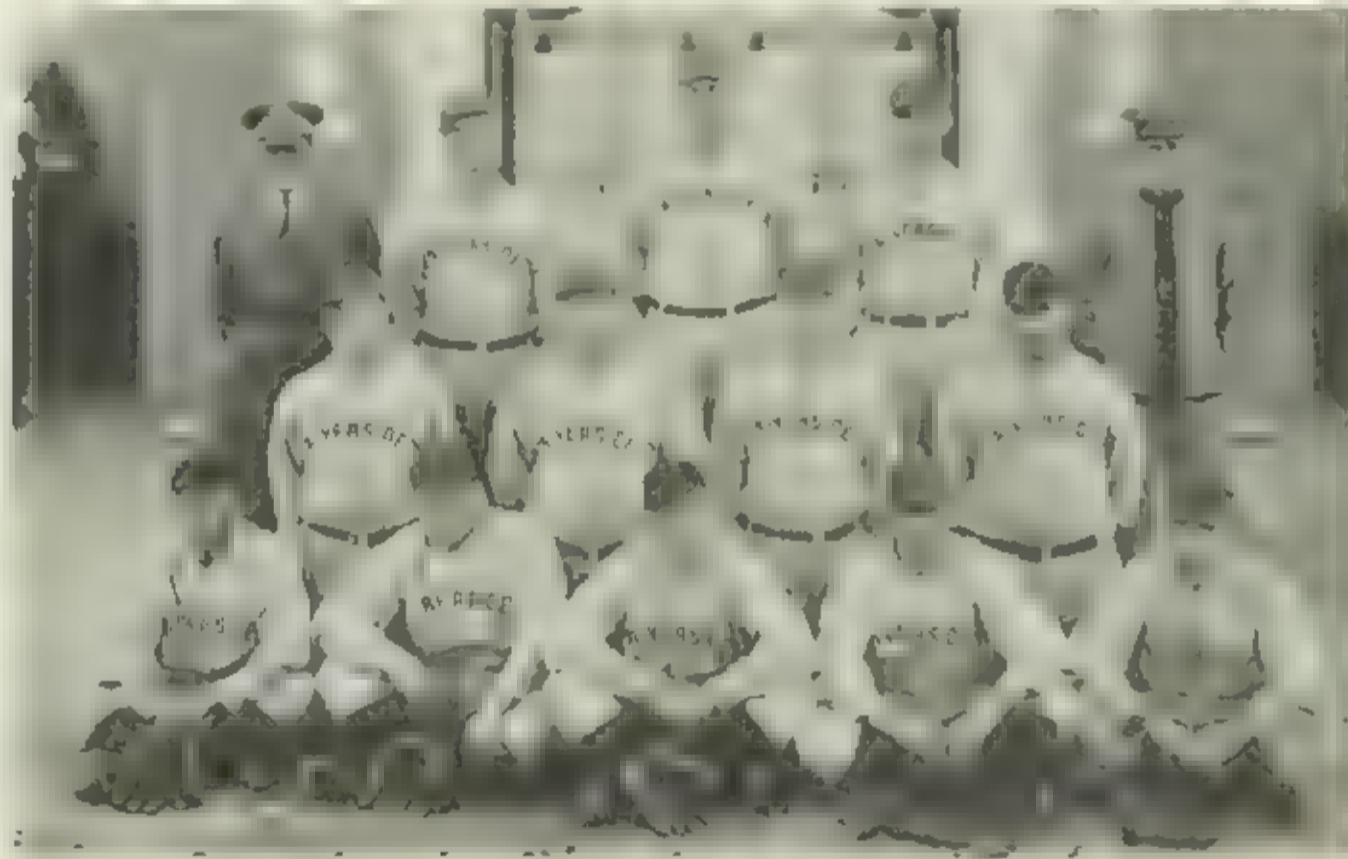

BASEBALL

THE organization of the "Big Four"—Boys' High, Tech High, G. M. A., and Riverside—has renewed our interest in baseball. The schedule of the recently formed league calls for two games each week—one on Wednesday, the second on Saturday. Large and handsome trophies will be awarded to the winner and to the runner-up.

Our hopes for winning a trophy rest upon the shoulders of the following boys: Young, A. D., catcher; Kieran, Durrance, W. R., Boyd, and Gilbert, pitchers; Bearden, first base; Gray, J. L., second base; Cole, K., shortstop; McMillian, third base; Causey, Holt, Floyd, and Charlotte, outfield, and Lessem, utility.

"The Little Four"—Riverside, Chicopee, New Holland, and Gainesville Mills—have established a league for younger players to play once each week, on Saturday. Our prospects are even brighter in this league, for the real developing ball players are found on this team. They are: Holman and Anderson, catchers; Godwin and Durrance, W. J., pitchers; Godwin and Lessem, first base; Griffin, second base; Taylor, R., shortstop; Drummond, third base; Blunk, Johnson, E. W., Trostel, and Calvin, outfield.

TENNIS

* TENNIS has proved as usual one of the Academy's most popular sports and Captain Mooney has been hard put to it to find a place for all ambitious racket wielders with even nine courts at his disposal. The usual number on almost any afternoon has run to about sixty players—compulsory athletics or not.

At the time of going to press with this publication it is a little difficult to make any predictions other than that the cadets will have a very busy tennis season with the opening of activities on April 14th of the Annual Inter-Company Tournament. This will be followed on May 7, 8, and 9 by the Southern Interscholastic Tennis Championships to be held at Riverside under authorization of the United States Lawn Tennis Association. Probably the following week-end there will be held at Riverside the Tennis Tournament of the Big Four, composed of Riverside and three Atlanta schools—Tech High, Boys' High, and Georgia Military Academy. In addition to these strenuous net activities Riverside plans to play school matches with some of the neighboring schools. Tennis will thus not suffer for lack of opportunities for competition.

As to the probable personnel of the team, it is a little difficult to make any definite statements. At any rate, Curtis Walker and Oscar Thompson are back from last year's team, while Spencer Ladd, Roy Symes, and Bill Thompson are old cadets who will make strong bids for places. Among the first year cadets Jack Schoonmaker, Hill, Boggs, and King are perhaps the most promising, although Hill seems to be a devotee as entire time to baseball. It is hoped that Riverside will return this year to the distinguished position in tennis that it has held for many years with the exception of last year's spring season when the showing made was poor.

TRACK

With the construction of a modern track, this form of sport was placed upon a firm basis this spring. There was of course a lack of experienced material, but this fact acted favorably upon the team, as a large number of cadets realized the possibility of making a varsity team, and entered into the sport with real enthusiasm.

The schedule this year was of necessity limited in its number of meets. Next year this will not be true as the team will be composed of cadets who have had the opportunity of working out all this year.

Several members of the squad give promise of making excellent records, and while their work in actual competition will come after the BAYONET has gone to press, we feel sure that Goodwin and Phillips in the dashes, McCurdy, Jeffords, Pau, White, Holister and Trapani in the distance and middle distance races, Allen in the hurdles, Hannum in the pole vault and high jump and Roper in the high jump, Wesselhoff, Louchton, and Dodge in the shot and discus, will represent Riverside with honor.

SWIMMING

★ THE present swimming team has before it a most difficult task if it is to continue the excellent record made by last year's team which was justly regarded as one of the strongest in the South. This year, Dodge, captain and instructor of the team, is having to develop a practically new group of men for his squad. His success in accomplishing this difficult task is best shown in actual performance. In the first meet of the season Riverside met the Georgia Tech freshman team and lost by a mere three points—30 to 33. This is an excellent beginning since the Tech team is correctly considered one of the strongest aggregations in this section and figures exceedingly well for future meets.

The present plan is to arrange meets with the freshmen of the leading colleges of the South and with the prep schools that put out teams in this sport. The BAYONET expects Riverside's representatives to make a good showing in any competition.

The present line-up of our team is:

50 yard dash	Touchton, Moseley, Norfleet
100 yard back stroke	Murphy, R. A., Hooks
200 yard free style	Payne, Dickson, Rinker, Lehman
100 yard breast stroke	Dodge, Mackie
100 yard dash	Harris, J. A., Brown
Relay team	Murphy, R. A., Harris, J. A., Touchton, Dodge
Diving	Hooks, Walker, A. C., Girtman
300 yard medley	Murphy, R. A., Dodge, Hooks

BOXING

★ RIVERSIDE's boxing history has been a creditable one and in fact has been so creditable that the season just concluded seems something of a let-down by comparison. On the whole, however, the past season has been a good one and has done much toward imparting the valuable lesson of experience.

Our season opened with the semi-final round of the Atlanta City Tournament on January 22nd. Bert Harrison of Riverside, a non-championship fighting courage, qualified for the final round by defeating Holland of Atlanta. Billy Johnston, distinguished son of the famous Jimmy Johnston, bowed to the greater experience of Joe Wofford but not without first making a decided impression on the right eye of this opponent. George Taylor lost a terrific battle to Buddy Enzor of Atlanta. The stabbing left hook of Jack West proved too much for Ralph Sanders of Atlanta and West was given the decision.

The final bouts on February 7th found Bert Harrison losing a close decision to Sears, Taylor winning a close one from Johnston of Decatur in a non-championship bout, and West jabbing his way to a win over Homer Robertson.

On February 11th the Southeastern Tournament was begun in Atlanta and lasted three days. West's left jab sharpened to a razor-like edge, brought him wins over Henry, Claud Bailey, and Neal Milam. The bout with Joe Wofford found West completely worn out and somewhat damaged. Wofford was given the decision in this match after a very close fight. It should be reported in fairness to West that this was the one unpopular decision of the evening's card as many of the spectators seemed to feel that the Riverside boy was entitled to the decision.

Bert Harrison defeated Floyd but lost to Sears of Tech High in the finals. George Taylor lost after a gallant fight. The season was completed by meets with New Holland, Gainesville Mills and a trip to Charleston, and in these matches comparatively inexperienced men were introduced into the line-up with a view to developing new material.

GOLF

THE Riverside Golf Team has not yet been chosen, but there is some good material in the school. The best player here is probably Spalding Watts who won the City Championship of Akron, Ohio. He shoots about 80 on the Clattoocine Golf Course. Although this is a short course it has many very steep hills that make it difficult. The other good players are Turner, T. M., who negotiates the course in about 83; Ison, a brilliant but rather erratic player; Mays, good for from 85 to 90; DeWitt, a steady, but not brilliant player. These men seem to compose the best material of the school.

The team will be composed of four men, chosen by repeated trials of their competitive ability. It is of course still possible at the early writing that others besides the cadets mentioned may develop and win places.

Two matches with Boys' High School of Atlanta have been arranged, one here and one in Atlanta. Others will be selected should the team show sufficient promise. Just now, however, the team is in need of practice on various courses rather than of competition with other teams.

One handicap that our team faces is that our own course has sand greens whereas most of the other courses in this section have grass greens. On the other hand, this handicap will be equalized when the other teams play return matches here and it is therefore to be hoped that our golf team will have an excellent season after the preliminary work of training has been completed.

OTHER ACTIVITIES

WASHINGTON SEMINARY DANCE

SHOES are shined . . . hair slicked down . . . the girls are coming. Hooray! Hooray! . . . An evergreen forest filled the gym; one could scarcely recognize the claspless. Yes, the girls are coming. The Washington's Birthday dance was scheduled to be a wonderful event. The cadets were host to a large number of young ladies from the Washington Seminary in Atlanta who came up especially for the occasion. These charming misses arrived in the early afternoon and were shown the "plant" by enthusiastic cadets. Shortly before supper the cadets put on a snappy parade and formally welcomed the girls.

The dance that night was truly the best of any previous one in the year. The gym was attractively decorated with evergreens and low lights were hidden in paper potpourris at various strategic points. The Flying Kaders rendered the music and if they get fat? You bet! The dance was semi-formal, there being ten card "no-break" numbers. A waltz contest offered competition for the couples and after a very close race the prize was awarded Miss Virginia D. Jon and her partner Carter Maslawn. Unusual lighting effects enlivened the dances and a varicolored spot proved quite amazing (as well as annoying). Small bronze cylinders were given these feminine guests as little souvenirs of the occasion. The dance broke up at eleven-thirty since the girls had to return to Atlanta that night. This was one affair that the cadets were loath to have end.

PAN-HELLENIC DANCES

REFRESHING costumes . . . beautiful girls . . . charming dates . . . rhythmic joys . . . a springtime party 'neath an April moon.

Girls and guests arrived at the old Academy all day Friday, April 10, for the annual Pan-Hellenic week end of parties and dances. Parents and sweethearts, sisters and friends came to be the guests of the cadets. The opening dance began at nine that night and the gym was most attractive. Pine branches were suspended profusely from the ceiling and arranged about the walls with the effect of a sylvan glade. The varicolored lights were placed about to good advantage. Various infantry weapons were placed about and added that "military" touch. The sponsors of the dances were the seven Hellenic fraternities at school and each had its individual emblem, electrically lighted, arranged in attractive exhibition on the wall. The guests were introduced and the dance proceeded in that gay and informal style, there being free "no break" numbers and our special fraternity dance. The large number of attractive visitors showed that the selection of King and Queen of Pan-Hellenics would be difficult. At twelve thirty the dance broke up and proved a snappy beginning for these festivities.

The next day a baseball game with Tech High was scheduled but was postponed on account of bad weather. The Tea Dance, however, began at four-thirty and the cadets and their dates enjoyed this afternoon affair very much.

The great climax was reached at the final dance on the night of April 11. The crowd was larger than the night before and the affair much more brilliant. Clarise Rogers, a talented dancer from Fort Dodge, presented several specialty ballroom numbers and her gait charmed her audience. During the intermission Ralph Luber entertained with his particular style of playing, which in other words is quite "hot."

The peak was reached in the evening by the crowning of the King and Queen of Pan-Hellenics for 1931. Captain McNeill officiated and crowned Cadet Tom Coker with the title of King, and as His Majesty's better half, Miss Grace White was chosen to be the lovely Queen. The dance resumed and at eleven-thirty the orchestra had to play that final waltz, "Home, Sweet Home," and with the "Alma Mater" the festivities were ended.

The souvenirs given the guests were very nice. Friday night they were chiffon handkerchiefs and Saturday evening silver-plate spoons decorated with the Riverside seal were the favors. Such were the dances on April 10-11, that marked the height of Riverside's social year.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The BAYONET gives herewith authentic and, we hope, humorous early impressions at Riverside.

Arrival at Riverside

WELL, you know, I always wanted to come to a military school and so last summer I got about forty catalogues and I was having a heck of a time making up my mind about which one would get me until one day a big red Buick with lots of decorations drove up home at Palooka and then it was all over and Ma and Pa and me knew all the time that Colonel Horton's school was the only one worth conudeeing.

So then September 16th I caught the train and came on up here to Gainesville. On the train there was a lot of boys and about half of them was like me—real anxious to get to Riverside but the other half was taking it easy and didn't seem to be in much of a hurry at all. It seems like they all knew all about the school anyhow and they felt like they better get all the vacation they could. Anyhow, about this time we reached Gainesville and there was a couple of boys, later I found out it was McNeely and Swain, in uniforms sorta like bell hops rounding up new boys and putting them on a bus with Riverside painted all over it.

After a cross-country tour in the bus, we reached a whole bunch of red brick buildings set up on top of a little mountain and I got out and went on in the first building and got a piece of paper after I turned in my check, and this piece of paper had on it my name and a bunch of places for people to sign. Next I went into a room with a rope running through the ceiling, and saw my friend Colonel Horton and I thought I was all fixed for a long talk but he chased me out after writing his name on it and telling me where I'd room. I reckon he was a little busy at that time because there were about forty other boys that came out on that bus with me. Later I found out the little room was called the guard room and that several prominent cadets like Foster, Bize, Tom Boyd, and Bud McKey carried on a thriving guard house lawyer concern there. The Colonel sent me on down to a little red building under the protection of a boy named Cain. Here a fellow that the bunch of boys hanging around called Sergeant found out more about me than I could tell him and took down everything but my fingerprints. All of a sudden I heard a tin horn tooting and everybody checked out in a hurry with Red Cain dragging me up the long hill we'd just come down. On the way we passed by a big building and a sport model aeroplane minus a few essential parts with a couple of boys looking out the window. What's this? I ask. What's this? says Red Cain except John Cain, Cain, Cain, the aviation class and the class of 1916. And Cain says I

Red Cain I was eating some sweet potatoes and bacon until some bird yells for me to get my feet out of the trough and how was I to know that he meant for me to get my arms off the table. I found out from Cain that the fellow that hollered at me was Fred Charlotte just getting into practice for a commission, so that sounded bad for me and I sat up just as straight as I could. After this meal, which didn't taste just like home-cooking, Red allowed that we would go to the bookstore. We went out front and Red looked around till he located a Hudson coach over near the building where the guard room was and then he says, "Yeh, the bookstore's open. Captain Beaver's car is here." So we went down in the basement and after what seemed like hours of waiting I got a little cap that didn't want to stay on my head, some putty that looked like they would do for either leg, a shirt, some pants, and a tie thrown at me. And then I had to sign a book after everybody had had a good wisecrack about me and Palooka and how homesick I might be for it before long, but of course I knew they were just kidding about that homesick business.

After a couple more meals and a struggle at getting classified—it looked like they didn't teach the same things here that I had at Palooka High, I went up to my room and looked over the two-deck affair I was supposed to sleep in and somehow I got to thinking about Palooka and the people there. And maybe it was a good thing I had so much trouble ever getting into that top bunk because it sorts took my mind off Palooks and I wasn't feeling quite as blue about being away from home as I might have been if I hadn't had that darned bed to think about.

After a couple more meals and a struggle at getting classified

Two Weeks Later ... Packs and Rifles

Well, I was getting along swell in a little bit and I knew who everybody was and where everything was except Lake Warner, so Red comes in one morning and says, "All right, today you get your rifle and pack and you can be a real soldier and not just a Boy Scout back in old Palooka." So I got to feeling pretty good thinking about carrying a real gun and a suee enough army pack. I never had seen any of their shooting irons, so I kinda expected a young cannon all shined up like the fourth of July and I thought a pack would be sorts like sister's overnight bag.

Well, at drill period we all formed up in the neighborhood of the old red shack that they call an armory and we formed line and before long they handed me a stick of grease, wood, and iron—that was the rifle—and a whole bag full of strap ends—that was the pack. Just to prove the theory that even a freshman can learn, I made exactly six trips from the parade to the armory in search of a balance for my rifle. If you think that was dumb, then you ought to have seen "Stupid" Pitts, A. R. Dyer, Lucy Edward, Percival Schoonmaker, and "Country" Simpson looking for reveille oil, buckets of taps, and skirmish line.

On our return from the field we realized that something was coming off in South Barracks. Captain Burger's shades were all up and his windows were open. Upon investigation I found that Captain Burger was playing tag with the largest species of South Barracks rats. Aided greatly by "Pee Wee" Williams' sabre, he was valiantly holding his own from the top of his table. We were promptly greeted with stories of rat armies in the Egyptian Balloon Corps.

After spending hours on old Betsy, I finally got her in such shape that she could be recognized as a rifle. Little did I dream that this cleaning was to be a weekly occurrence. And I've never been able to comprehend fully the ability of some of the tactical officers to find dust and rust on a perfectly clean surface.

The pack is about the worst thing that I have ever met up with. Between Captain Russell whooping it up to get the blankets right and Lieutenant Maxwell's "Hurry it up, men," I was nearly dying of haste and worry. After about four broken fingers, a couple of hours and six distinct and separate cursings out I finally got all my equipment together. At that I finished before Symes.

This thing called inspection is void. No matter how many things you clean up, there is sure to be something wrong. How many arms has a fellow, anyhow?

I think what's wrong is that I went into this thing too hurriedly. Next time I'll be more careful. Two Weeks Later ... Packs and Rifles afraid. However, I'm not the worst anyhow and maybe some day I can be a technical sergeant and won't have to work anymore. Here's hoping

Classes—Nuf Said

"So this is the chapel. I wonder wh—
"Seats!"

Bishon surely does like to play on that rim of his drum. What music! What a march!

"We will sing number 71 this morning, fellows; let's all get a book and sing some harmony."

Then followed ". . . every cloud will wear a rainbow, if your heart keeps right !!!"

Pass your books down."

After this singing a man in civilian clothes stepped forward and after a few verses of Matthew proceeded to elucidate on the disintegrating peccability from all femininity to the flowered manhood of today.

Suddenly the room was awakened and coughing seemed to fill the place; Chemical Turner had just come in with his fatal phial of acid.

Major Mooney came forward and with a fitting speech on horse racing and John L. Sullivan, congratulated the Honor Roll.

Coach Dowis announced the bull shooting practice to be held on the rifle range during the play period.

Second day of traps later I found myself in Chemistry by accident and escaped only with two boxes of a thousand.

This time a "phooey" noise on a bugle by that maestro, Roller, jostled me out of class. Then I was ready to see a tall, lean figure hidden beneath a sheet of larger and more called the roll in a biology class. Watt and "Trap" were busy trying to appear brilliant, but this man caught them reading Doatorobuski's "Tertium Organum." Forty-five minutes passed slowly by.

"Now, Webster, start reading in French.

"Si vous femmes toojewers, je studay mons en" the victim replied while the class chuckled.

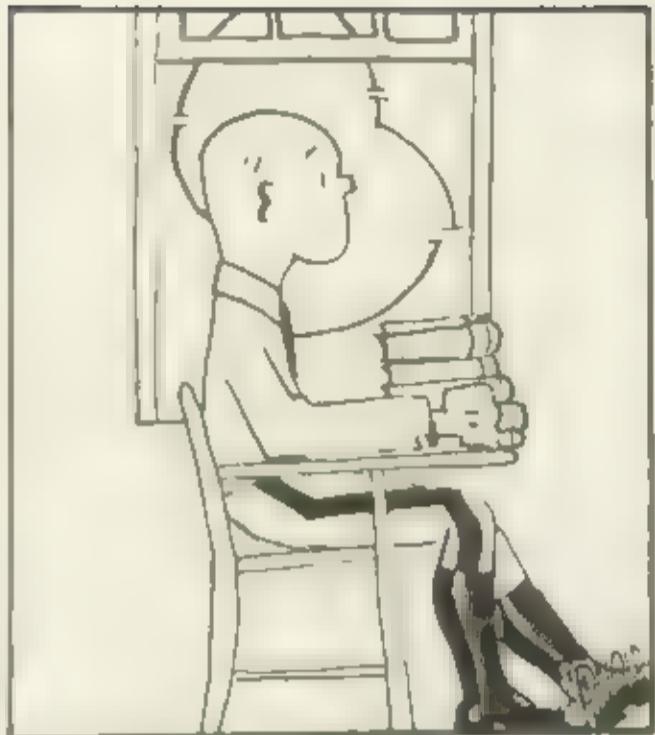

"Mr. Kent, you are smirking so, what tense is tadak?"

"Good Lord, man! Past what? A French 'past' is as definite as a chorus girl's past. Now what is it?"

My next faculty officer was one that I had met ten times in my first three days.

"Sit down and cut out that talking. Post Mr. Harkins for deliberately talking in study hall. Now, fellows, you know I don't like to keep reporting you, but you new birds have got to do what you're told. At V. M. I. we . . ."

A period later I found myself in a low room. The haze was thick and sparks were flitting about

Sit down and cut out that talking like butterflies. The smell of acid filled the room and gradually through the fog I saw a row of seats. Sitting down, I gazed intently through the mist. Suddenly a voice said:

"Mr. Long, what do you mean by pranking in laboratory?"

Then a cadet looking like a veteran of some ancient war staggered out. Touchton had met his Nemesis in chemistry.

"To get back on the lesson—now, boys, we haven't time for outside work. Today we take up the effect of eggs on age, beauty, and love."

Sixth period I went to English, a course in American literature.

"Now class, please, I'm talking. I shall read one of Walt Whitman's most famous poems. See if you recognize it—'Across the subway aisle the sat, a maiden young and fair . . .'" The slow and carefully enunciating voice began, but the teacher's twinkling eye was of no avail.

Z z z z z."

For drill today I went with the band. Now, at home in the Palooka Symphony Orchestra, I played solo violin, but this bandmaster didn't put me in first chair. He asked me to play a solo but my pad stuck and my reed was water-soaked. I can play though, for in Palooka (Editor's Note—It any more necessary?)

I can't understand what Captain Shearouse means by "piano." He keeps telling me to learn one, or something about it. In one march, though, I showed him how good I am; why I blew louder than all the . . . (the Editor must spare you the rest. You have the idea. Oh, yes, the next day this innocent cadet was transferred back to a company with rifles. Thus it needn't be said.)

Merry Christmas, Sir!

The Day Before Christmas Vacation

WELL, I've been counting days and minutes and hours and seconds so much for the past two months that I certainly ought to be good in math, but I haven't made the Honor Roll a single time yet—Captain Russell's algebra is just a little too much—so here I am ready to leave with the rest of the big bunch after about ~~xx~~ football games with Tech Hi. Anyhow there was more games than scoring. Well I want to write something about this period of my year at Riverside, but it looks like there's not hardly anything to write about now except Christmas vacation and everybody's in such a panic about that, that I can't seem to find anything to write. 'Course, Colonel's telling us to keep our feet on the ground and our heads up and not to get excited—but it seems like it's mighty little use. Santa Claus is just too much competition.

Well anyhow, I want to write something about it, so I'm going to try something that Major Moore was talking about. You know he's like most English teachers, always trying to tell you about how writing ought to be done and the other day in class he says that lots of modern writers try to get "atmosphere and artistic verisimilitude"—he spelled that out for me—by just putting down what they hear regardless of whether it makes much sense or not, and that finally the whole jumble just sorts gives the general feeling.

Well, I'm going to write down all I heard that last day at Riverside just to see how it works out.

SCENE: Riverside

CHARACTERS: Riverside cadets in toto.

TIME: From reveille to noon December 17th
Great day. Just six more hours and we're on our way. Six hours, 360 minutes, 21600 seconds and ten of them have already gone. How long have you been up?—looks like reveille's mighty late going this morning. I bet the OD or the Sergeant of the Guard overslept or they can't find the musician or something. We better go up to the guard room to see what's the matter. Hey, there it goes—come on fellows, there's second call—gosh, why don't they get going at the guard room. Have you carried your trunk up yet?—better get a tag 'cause Major Watson and Captain Tucker won't let you put it in the little dining room till you tag it. You gonna send your trunk home—how come? Must be needing lots of clothes. Aw, not coming back, huh—I'll bet you're the first one here. These boys that aren't gonna come back are always the first ones—say there's warning. What, no formation? How come? Yeah, I guess they know everybody's gonna be up anyhow—let's get busy and clean up this room; you know we can't leave till we get our room cleared—naw, not a chance. Say, it's time to eat—that so-and-so sergeant of the guard certainly isn't functioning! I bet he's got hours and don't care about getting off or he'd snap into it a little. Whatcha gonna do this Christmas—show the ladies about? Oh, no-o-o? You know, there's something to this stuff Colonel Beaver's been handing us about hard times and depressions—I'm gonna stick around home more this Christmas than I ever did before and see if I can't save a little money and maybe make Mother and Dad enjoy their Christmas—I'll probably stay home most every night—Oh yeah-h-h—I bet. Well, there's soupie—gosh, reckon they expect us to feed our faces this grits and bacon and apples just before ~~—~~ home—I wish Fox'd hurry and say "Move ~~—~~ I'm ready to check—there he goes. Bat-~~—~~ atten-SHUN. Section—Dis-MISSed! Now classes—short periods, I reckon—what's prospects of a bull session—ugh, not with Captain Mooney. Say, you don't know that guy! Six periods and it seems like sixty—say, Cap, I think I heard the bugle—movements of feet—yeah, that's it Cap. Well, it's all over now. Good gosh, will you look at that line—four hundred and fifty ahead of us, I bet—oh well, we'll get off some day. Oh, boy, am I glad I'm not on that bull ring ~~tr~~—yenir, Colonel—I hope you have a big Christmas—Goodbye, Sir.

And you know, that may be "artistic verisimilitude" like Major Moore says, and that may be a good way to write, but it looks to me like with the one thing I had in my head all the time I could say all that I've taken a whole page to say, and that one word is HOME.

The Day After Christmas Vacation

WELL, I see you got back first thing after all. Oh sure, you know I wasn't serious when I said I wouldn't be back. Have a big time Joe! . . . Great, Tom, gosh it's tough to leave just when you're getting her interested . . . What did you do Christmas? . . . Santa Claus good to you? . . . Well the old place looks the same 'cept the bull ring looks kinda unused . . . Hey, Chuey, happy—no bull ring today, you know . . . Sherman, kill any wild buffaloes on your hunting trip this time? . . . How's the Kokomo kid?

(If you insist on quotation marks, here they are—just put 'em in " " " " etc.)

Anyhow most of us got back to Riverside and then we went over to Chapel, and from what Colonel Horton and Colonel Beaver and Captain McNeill had to say it seemed like they was afraid we might get homesick again so they were gonna give us enough work to keep us from having time to think about home. However, they didn't start study hall the first night, but they did the second, and so we settled down pretty soon into hard work and lots of it. Pretty soon all the wild tales of love affairs and hunting trips and all the rest of the bull that most of the fellows had been saving up all during vacation for the rest of the fellows . . . and first thing you know we got back to talking about what was the use of getting up before daylight and did the Colonel really have a corner on the grits and sweet potato market and were all the teachers gonna flunk all of us and how many times a day did you need to sweep your room and shine your putes to keep from getting reported. Say, you know, I never had any idea I was gonna take a course at school that I see you got back first thing . . .

The hours I spent with thee, dear heart would qualify me as first class shine boy—why I used to have to work on mine about four times a day and then they looked downright dingy next to little Turner's and Fleming's and some of those boys'. Why I never could get orderly, not even on Thursday when I spent two hours shining up to try to get out of algebra test.

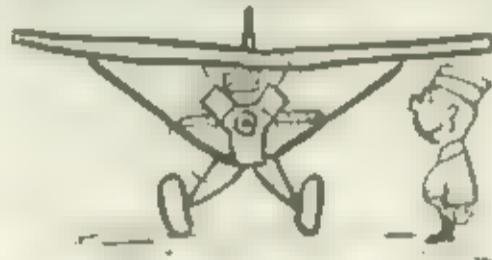

After exams, which most of us survived, we had the Washington Seminary girls up for a dance and Deers and Henry and Captains Merchant and Smith got to bring them up here all the way from Atlanta, and then we had a swell dance—and before we knew it Government Inspection was on us and we tried to put on a good show for Major Hobbs and Colonel White. Say, I didn't have any idea that four hundred boys could work together like the bunch did—it made you proud to belong and you really felt like one of "The Four Hundred." And then Pan-Hellenics were enough to make you forget all the hard work that had gone before—and now, the BAYONET Editor says that I've filled my quota of space and then some, and that he's gotta send my stuff to the printer. So I'll have to stop—the Editor says that sounds mighty good because he thinks the readers are just gonna look at Joe Arnold's drawings anyhow. The whole idea of this series of articles was to give a sort of odyssey of a Riverside boy in his first year and the Editor says that Captain Mooney—our Faculty Adviser—says that it hasn't reached sufficiently epic proportions—you know he always talks sorta like that, anyhow. So, I'm through—and I hope for good because when I wrote for the Palooka Times they weren't always talking about things that I didn't know about. So—we go to press

WHAT EVERY CADET BELIEVES

That every faculty officer, no matter how sane he may appear, has some peculiarity.
That there's something wrong with any cadet who has never been on the Bull Ring.
That these boys who make the Honor Roll every week have misdirected interests.
~~I am taking cadet pictures in worse than going to school, if possible. Just one more, please.~~
That cadets are always over-worked and that faculty officers have nothing to do.
That the Band's a crip.
That getting into college is the big difficulty; that staying there is easy.
That getting ready for Government Inspection is mere child's play.
That Captain Burger enjoys reporting cadets for any and all offenses.
That units should be given for Spelling and Bible.
That any interruption of school work is a great blessing.
That school days are the happiest time of a person's life—Bull Ring, Classes, Compulsory Athletics, etc.
That Captain Stevenson doesn't own a cap.
That Major Moore's light uniform is the surest sign of spring.
That Major Mooney has never missed a day's golf in the past fifty years.
That senior algebra examinations are the worst nuisances in a senior's life.
That school and teachers are a nuisance anyhow.
That potatoes and bacon are the staple Georgia breakfast.
That all Georgians serve grits twice and rice once a day.
That it's best to invite at least three girls to Pan-Hellenic—then maybe with luck, one date will arrive.
That Feimster enjoys French.
That Major Fox has a wave put in weekly.
That it's all right to signal any car on the road if there isn't a brown uniform visible.
That no one on the BAYONET Staff ever works.
That you can go to any college with any kind of diploma and some without any if you are a good athlete.
That Tom Coker will come back to Riverside next year out of force of habit. That Sherman will do likewise.
~~I am taking cadet pictures in worse than going to school, if possible. Just one more, please.~~
That C. R. Long will be a great inventor or aviator.
That Captain Mooney prefers tennis to French, even.
That Captain Russell can't teach without his algebra "stick."
That Tom Boyd is very much in love.
That Roller will probably join the Metropolitan Opera Company when he leaves Riverside.
That McIntire has become a "professional" orderly.
And again that June 1st is the greatest of all days of 1931 and many years to come.

SUNDAY NIGHT LETTERS

Dear Mother:

Any Sunday

Well, I'll write just this little note to let you know that I'm still here and that I'm working mighty hard and that I think maybe my next report card is gonna be better than last week's. You know, I still think there's something wrong about that low grade I got in algebra and I'm going to find out about it and I'll be sure to let you know when I do.

You know I was ~~over~~ here thinking about ~~the~~ how good some fried chicken would taste. Course, I know it's out of the question, but sometime if you have time you might fix up a little bit of a box for me. But don't bother of course.

Do you mind asking Dad if he can spare me a little money—you know that quarter I got last week on account of algebra wasn't enough to get me anywhere.

Sorry I must stop but I've just got to get busy on that algebra and I know you want me to get that up.

Love to all,

JOHN.

Dear Dad:

Any Sunday

Well, I've got just time for a short note ~~as I am~~ ~~now~~ ~~on~~ ~~the~~ ~~way~~ ~~to~~ ~~the~~ ~~Honor~~ ~~Roll~~ ~~like~~ ~~Bill~~ ~~Jones~~ ~~from~~—but all he ever does is study. And I ~~know~~ ~~you~~ ~~want~~ ~~me~~ ~~to~~ ~~take~~ ~~part~~ ~~in~~ ~~all~~ ~~school~~ ~~act~~—

Now, listen, Dad, I want you to call Colonel Beaver and tell him that you want me to come home this week-end and tell him that since we live so far away you want to keep me over till Monday morning and want me to leave Friday night after dinner so I can make the 2:10 train. Now don't forget that Monday part, because if you do I'll have to be back for Sunday parade. I sure am looking forward to getting back home again—you know, it's been a long time since I was there.

If you don't mind, I'd like to use the car Friday and Saturday and Sunday nights.

Sorry to have to stop so soon, but I've got to—I mean, study some algebra. Love,

JOHN.

P.S.—Don't forget to send me some money for the trip and for fraternity dues and some new shoes. J.

Dear Mother:

April 1

Well, not much time tonight, but I want to write just a line to let you know that I'm getting along fine and that tomorrow's the big day. And, gosh, how we have been working—but I'll have to quit now because I've got to get everything cleaned up perfect. But I'll be sure to write you tomorrow to let you know how we came out. I know you wouldn't want me to write any more now because I've got so much still to do.

Hastily with love, JOHN.

P.S.—Remind Dad that Pan-Hellenic Dances are this Friday, and that I'll need a lot of extra money for the week-end. J.

Dear Mother:

December 14

Well, I'm awfully busy right now studying and keeping up work and getting ready to come home Thursday. You know, if it hadn't been for algebra and one or two other things, I'd have made the Honor Roll five weeks and then I'd already be home. Gosh, I bet Bill Jones has told everybody in town that he got home ahead of me by making the Honor Roll. Why, if I took as easy a course as that guy, I'd always be on the old H. R.

Listen, when does sister get home from college—I wish you'd tell her that I'm willing to take night about with her on the car except I got to have it over the week-ends and for dance nights.

Well, I'm sorry to close so soon, but you know how it is when you've got work to do—you just can't let pleasure interfere with duty.

Well, I'll get home Friday or Saturday—don't worry if I don't get there Friday, because I may stop over a night with my roommate—he's got a sister at Brenau, you know.

I wish you'd tell Dad about this so he'll be sure to give me a big enough check—it's just one of the things you kinda have to do.

Love to all, JOHN.

P.S.—Tell Dad he better send the check special delivery so there can't be any delay. Love, J.

KADET DICTIONARY

A. W. O. L.—Absent without leave; not approved very highly in official quarters.

A. M. I.—Daily inspection of rooms in the morning. A specialty with Colonel Horton.

B. A.—Busted aristocrat—cadet officer reduced to grade of private. We have a few notable examples but for fear of offending we won't name 'em.

Bone—To study unusually hard; a small cube with markings from one to six.

Bootlick—The popular sport of currying favor.

Butt—Remnant of skag; see duck.

Cits—Civilian clothes—what the well dressed cadet does not wear.

Deadbeat—Not restricted to cadet slang.

Duck—A cigarette in times of depression.

Femme—What you cherchez—a young lady.

Fore—Warning signal in golf. One of Major Mooney's favorite terms.

Help—A dance where snakes abound—the cause of many requests for medical assistance from home.

Kayf—Cadet, from our viewpoint the most oppressed of animals, from others' viewpoint, the most fortunate of young men.

Make—To appoint as cadet officer or non-com—rare and almost obsolete.

Muck—To avoid unpleasant task or any other kind of work.

Non-reg. Uniform—Worn by cripples and others in case of necessity.

O. D.—Officer of the Day; also a much feared uniform color.

O. G.—Officer of the Guard; terror of N. C. O's.

Podunk—Home town or paper therefrom.

P-parade—Parade; every Sunday afternoon.

P-coat—Abbreviated overcoat worn by cadets—reaffer.

Rank—Not the adjective; a most valued thing—rating.

S. N. L.—Sunday Night Letter—a weekly requirement.

Skag—Cigarette; what you walk a mile for, or sometimes, fifty hours.

Tour—Wednesday and Saturday afternoon compulsory athletics.

Lieutenants are made, not born.

The quickness of the hand deceives the eye—hence black eyes.

The fastest game he played was bridge—yet he had athlete's foot.

Halt—"Captain, I can't get this electricity into my head."

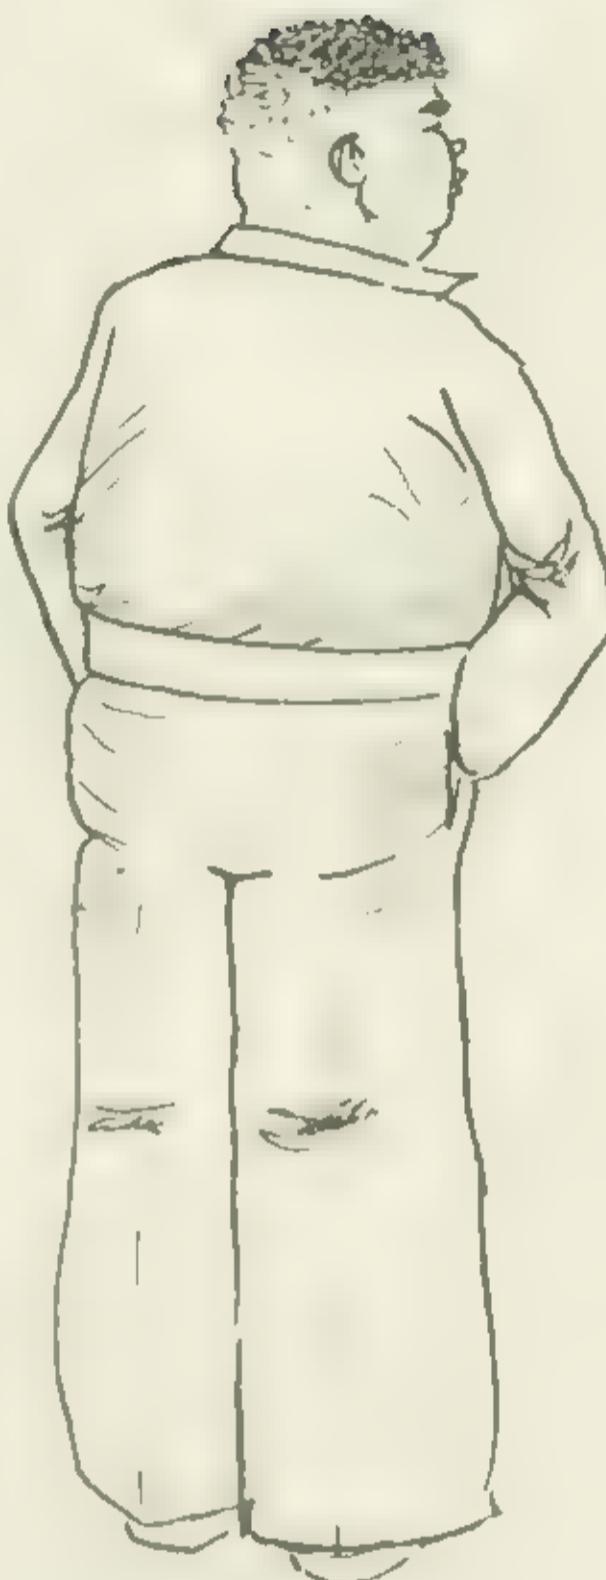

Captain Daniel—"Well, it's like this, wood is a non-conductor."

History tells us that the Battle of Tours was fought between the French under Charles Martel and the Saracens under certain great leaders centuries ago and that the French won a great victory.

But we know better. We know that the battle of tours is fought every Wednesday and Saturday afternoon on the parade and that it is between cadets and faculty with an inevitable brilliant victory for the faculty. And that the chief casualties are in wear and tear on cadet shoe leather.

This modern battle is no practice maneuver carried on every once in a while. On the contrary, it is carried on regardless of mud, snow, rain, and the Monroe game. May the gods rest the privates weary dogs!

SHRAPNEL

Riverside Barber (waving bottle of hair tonic): "Will you have anything on your head after I'm through with you?"

Cadet: "I doubt it."

No, fellow cadets, The Big Parade is not a revue.

Captain Burger: "Don't he, Steigelman. Don't he!"
Steigelman: "Can't I say anything, Captain?"

R. M. A. 1980

Butler: "Sir, the O. D. sends in his card."

Cadet: "Shucks, tell him I'm out."

RIVERSIDE'S PRIVATE CEMETERY

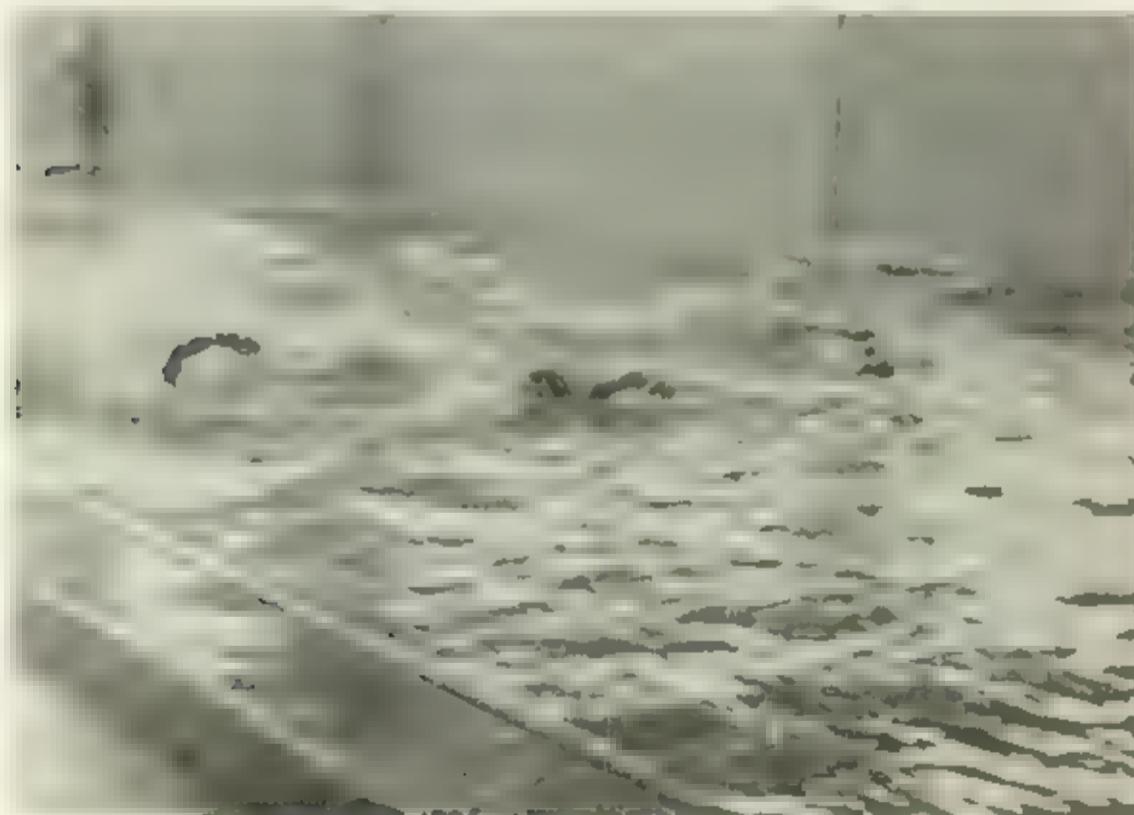

Shovel some dirt on Cadet Hill,
He called Captain Pitcher, Big Bad Bill.

Six feet deep lies Private Brown,
He yelled at the Colonel—
"Keep your feet on the ground!"

"I'm cutting quite a figure," said the Brenau girl as she sat on a broken bottle.

At Riverside, "button, button, who's got the button," is no guessing game—you can bet on the laundry any time.

The BAYONET expresses herewith its appreciation of the cooperation of the firms that have placed advertisements in the following pages.

This advertising has provided the BAYONET with a substantial part of its income and has thus made possible its publication on the scale followed.

We of the Staff therefore want to ask all Riverside cadets to reciprocate the loyalty of our advertisers to Riverside with a similar fine loyalty to these advertisers.
